CHASING Classic CARS

With a lifetime of experience in automobile restoration, Wayne Carini has a resume that includes body and paint work on rare car collections owned by David Letterman, tennis great Ivan Lendl, and the DuPont family. He has been featured in the New York Times as well as numerous automobile magazines and is the host of Chasing Classic Cars, on Velocity.

Wayne's zeal for cars began as a child, working alongside his father on Duesenbergs, Lincolns, Packards, and Model A Fords. At the age of nine, he went for his first ride in a 1960 Ferrari Rosso Chiaro 250 SWB, and his life was forever changed. He was bitten by the Ferrari bug. Automobiles have been his passion and life's work ever since.

When he is not traveling the world chasing cars, Wayne enjoys spending time with his family in the log home he built over 40 years ago in rural Connecticut, and working on his new dream, Carini Vineyards on the farm the family just purchased. The family loves to take summer afternoon rides in their 1927 Bentley Touring Car. Wayne's youngest daughter who was diagnosed with autism at an early age especially enjoys "going fast." Wayne is an avid supporter of autism awareness and research organizations and helps organize and sponsor car events benefiting children and adults with autism.
